

Never Walk Alone

Arms stretched out wide
Barely hanging onto life
Left to suffer on your own
You came for all mankind
To bridge the great divide
Some how you ended up alone
Because of all the blood and tears you shed
I will never know that kind of loneliness

Your spirit never leaves me
Even when I'm hurting
I don't have to bear that burden on my own
You carried all the pain and buried all the shame when
You made that rugged tree your righteous throne
Because of you I'll never walk alone

You came here as a man I know you understand
What it's like to walk these roads
My problems don't compare to that crown you had to wear
Still you take them as your own
Because of all the blood and tears you shed
I will never know that kind of loneliness

Your spirit never leaves me
Even when I'm hurting
I don't have to bear that burden on my own
You carried all the pain and buried all the shame when
You made that rugged tree your righteous throne
Because of you I'll never walk alone
